Margaret Hollingsworth was born in 1935 in Lakefield, Ontario. She has been a Personal Secretary, Bookkeeper/Accountant, and worked for the Canadian Federal Government. Through marriage, separation, raising three children, school, working and a second marriage, she has always written. She has been published in bulletins, and has had articles in southwestern and central Ontario newspapers.

From her early years on a Depression Era farm, she has gone from horse and wagon to seeing men land on the moon; from wood heat to electric; from the Ford Model T to Smart Cars; the world has never stopped turning nor changing. During the Second World War, her parents worked in factories and she grew up on the Home Front. She has seen the violence of crime, both organized and not, first hand. The good old days were not all good and not all bad, and Margaret wanted her grandchildren to understand that life has always been complex, real and vibrant.

Currently, she lives in Goner, Manitoba, with her dog and cat and two adult children nearby. Gathering Memories is her first published book and part one of a two-part memoir written for her family. (#837) $35.00
