2. Tavakoli, Javad; Lyle Mueller; Holly Fraser; Keith F. Taylor;. Connections: Math from an Aboriginal Perspective. Okanagan, British Columbia: University of British Columbia Press, N.D. [Circa 2012]. First printing. pp. 510. 4to. Illustrated colour card covers. Many black and white drawings, figures, illustrations etc. Lightest rubbing to the covers, contents bright, clean and unmarked with tight, sound binding; near fine. The authors of this highly unique book aim to incorporate elements of Indigenous culture, spirituality into conveying complex mathematical concepts in Algebra, Real Number Systems, Basic Arithmetic Rules, Functions and Graphs, Quadratic Functions, Exponentials and Logarithms, and Geometry & Trigonometry. The text and contents forms the basis for the UBC Okanagan Course MATH 126: Basic Mathematics from an Aboriginal Perspective. Paperback.

"This text closely follows the concepts outlined in the book The Sacred Tree. Our experiences with this book have led to the understanding that we can look at mathematics from an Aboriginal perspective. This volume will be introduced by sharing four brief passages from The Sacred Tree: a) "Symbols express and represent meaning. Meaning helps provide purpose and understanding in the lives of human beings. Indeed, to live without symbols is to experience existence far short of its full meaning. Ways of expressing and representing meaning include symbol systems of mathematics, spoken and written language and art." b) The Medicine Wheel: This is an ancient symbol used by almost all Native people of North and South America. There are many different ways that this basic concept is expressed: the four grandfathers, the four winds, the four cardinal directions, and many other relationships that can be expressed in sets of four. Just like a mirror can be used to see things not normally visible (e.g. behind us or around a corner), the medicine wheel can be used to help us understand things we can't quite see or understand because they are ideas and not physical objects. c) Wholeness. All things are interrelated. Everything in the universe is a part of the single whole. Everything is connected in some way to everything else. It is therefore possible to understand something only if we can understand how it is connected to everything else. d) The medicine wheel is an ancient and powerful symbol of the universe. It is a silent teacher of the realities of things. It shows the many different ways all things are interconnected. Beyond that, it shows one only things that are, but also things that could be." 3. Chief Red Fox Skiuhushu; Rev. Black Hawk (Eds.). American Indian Tepee Summer Season Number; Rose Moon, Blood Moon, Thunder Moon. Yakima, Washington: American Indian Tepee Association (An Official Magazine for Tipi Order of America), 1920. Volume One, Number Two. pp. 31. 8vo. Illustrated yellow card covers bearing a black and white image of an Indigenous man in traditional clothes standing in front of a tepee. Black and white photographs, illustrations and advertisements by local merchants. The rear cover advertises the "American Indian Tepee Camp", touted as a "real Indian Outdoor Camp in real Forest and Mountains; Boys under training and leadership of American Indian Teachers, assisted by White American Leaders - On All Out Door sports as well as Indian Life; Open for Indians and White Boys". Interestingly the contents routinely feature the swastika (as a symbol of auspiciousness and good fortune, prior to being used by the Nazi regime as symbol of Aryan supremacy). Page 21 reprints an article originally published in the Montreal Star on April 21, 1920 entitled: "Our Canadian Indians Across The Border" which makes a positive case for Canada's Indigenous population. Lightest rubbing to the covers, contents bright, clean and unmarked with tight, sound binding; very good+. Exceedingly scarce. Stapled Wraps.

The American Indian Tepee was a wholly Indigenous owned and operated publication operating out of Yakima, Washington from 1920-1922; it acted as an official organ of the Tipi Order of America. The series is noted for it's positive depiction of Indigenous peoples of America and Canada. It published oral stories as told by elders, featured anthropological studies and histories of Indigenous peoples, songs and music. It also featured articles critical of governments in their neglect of Indigenous peoples making note of broken promises and the disenfranchisement of the American Indian. (#904) $85.00

4. James, George Wharton (1858-1923). What The White Race May Learn from the Indian. Chicago: Forbes & Company | Edith E. Farnsworth, 1908. First edition. pp. 269. 8vo. Maroon cloth boards with gilt lettering to spine. Black and white photographic frontispiece of a group of Indigenous children posing. Replete with many black and white photographs of Indigenous peoples, maps, and illustrations of Indigenous art and crafts. Sections include: The White Race and Its Treatment of the Indian; The Indian and Out-of-Door Life; The Indian and Sleeping Out-of-Doors; The Indian As A Walker; The Indian In The Rain And the Dirt; The Indian and Diet; The Indian and Social Traits and Customs; The Indian and Some Luxuries, et al. Lightest rubbing to the boards, short neat ink inscription to the front pastedown otherwise the contents remain bright, clean and unmarked with tight, sound binding; very good+. Hardcover.

5. [Yakima Indian Christian Mission]. The Yakima Indian Christian Mission White Swan, Washington. [White Swan, Washington]: Privately Printed, N.D. [Circa 1960's?]. First printing. pp. 24. Oblong 8vo. Light blue stapled card covers. Black and white photographic frontispiece depicting a group of young Indigenous children and youth posing for photographs in a variety of settings. Sections include discussions of the history of the mission, daily routines, tales and legends of the local Indigenous peoples. A section has also been devoted to Indigenous traditions such as Pow-Wow ceremonies and the efforts of the mission to preserve and integrate their cultural heritage with Christian doctrine. The booklet is accompanied with a set of three leaves each measuring 8.5" x 11" with drawings of the main buildings of the missions including a depiction of the "Main Building - South"; "Boys Dormitory"; "Rice's Cottage". Also included is a rough aerial rendering of the gardens and fields surrounding the main building. The third leaf provides alternate views (right and left side view) of the aforementioned structures. All of the renderings are attributed to Derfla Dunn. Two small faint spots to the front cover, a portion of the preface and of page 8 has been excised thus affecting portions of the text on these leaves. Contents remain bright, clean and unmarked with tight, sound binding. Overall, very good. At time of cataloguing no indication of the presence of this title amongst the holdings at Peel, BAC/LAC. Indeed, WorldCat does not indicate the presence of this title amongst any institutional holdings. Rare. Stapled Wraps.

"This brief history of combat service support (CSS) in Manitoba-based units is an attempt to capture historical information to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the stand-up of the Winnipeg Service Battalion, which took place in 1965 in conjunction with the legislated integration of the Canadian Forces. Part 2 of the history undertakes to tell a story about the evolution of military logistics (combat service support) in Manitoba and Manitoban CSS units overseas, where applicable, from the Riel Rebellion of 1870 and 1885, through the Boer War, World War I, World War II and Korea. Part 2 of the history picks up the thread in the 1960's and carries forward to the present day, focusing to a large extent on information collection from former and currently serving members through interviews and questionnaires." Black and white photographs, illustrations. Appears unread, contents bright, clean and unmarked with tight, sound binding; near fine. Paperback.

"In this book the author Jacob Friesen who was born in 1918, relates his experiences as a child on a homestead located at the foot of the Pembina Hills. His move to the village of Reinland in the early 1920's immediately followed the migration of the Mennonites to Mexico. Growing up in the village during the "dirty thirties" was difficult. Then came the life-changing trauma of World War II and a brief sojourn in Paraguay. Eventually the author was called to the ministry and by the grace and mercy of God was instrumental in establishing a fundamental evangelical growing church in Gladstone, Manitoba. The Friesen's raised a family of 10 children." (#1003) $35.00
